To whom it may concern:

We really valued what our staff learned on the training “Organizational theory and behavior” delivered 21, 22, 28 and 29 of September, 2015.

The AUKTDI used a variety of techniques during the training conduction, starting from theory and supporting that by interactive discussions, assignments and presentations based on best practices.

It is very important mentioning that the training was a very interesting topic for the participants. This especially due to the fact that the training as such has raised innovative issues not that much earlier discussed and this is the reason why the participants used to be quite interested and active during the whole training.

Practical work, assignments and description of comparative cases of different types of organizations enabled our staff to gain theoretical and practical knowledge.

Sincerely,
